

ABSTRACT

Methods and apparatus to minimize debugging and testing time of applications are described herein. In an example method, an instrumented code of the application is generated. A plurality of tests is executed on the instrumented code of the application. One or more test profiles associated with the plurality of tests are generated. A list containing at least one of the plurality of tests based on the one or more test profiles is identified.